Blood pressure home measurement in a healthy Iranian population: the Jiroft Study. Blood pressure is one of the most important risk factors for cardiovascular diseases. Home blood pressure measurement is a well-known, simple and noninvasive technique to assess the blood pressure. This study aimed to evaluate blood pressure in a healthy Iranian population using home blood pressure measurement. This cross-sectional study was performed among a sample of 824 Iranian subjects in the Jiroft area. Systolic and diastolic blood pressures were measured by home blood pressure measurements using a validated oscillometric device (Omron 705CP). The subjects were classified into 4 groups according to the self-reported hypertension.

The overall prevalence of hypertension was 26.6%. The mean systolic and diastolic blood pressures in the hypertensive of this post Original post by Snimnors: Survey of emotions in patients with temporomandibular disorders. This study investigates the most common emotion and emotional intensity in patients with temporomandibular disorders (TMD). The hypothesis is that the emotion intensity will be related to the severity of the TMD. A total of 103 patients with a chief complaint of TMD pain were examined by means of a semistructured interview containing the following questions: "Do you have pain in the following areas: ear, head, face, neck, shoulders, abdomen, chest, or back? Have you experienced this pain for more than 3 months? Do you have pain in your head, face, jaw, ear, throat, tongue, teeth, or abdomen?" The most commonly encountered emotion was 'pain' (45.8%), while 'sadness' was second most common (30.9%), followed by 'angry' (11.6%), 'fear' (10.7%), 'anxious' (5.8%), 'disappointed' (2.9%), and 'satisfied' (2.9%). These results are compared with those of a previous study on orthodontic patients, and with the frequency of various emotions observed in other studies. There are clear differences in the occurrence of emotions between the two groups. The present invention relates to electrochemical storage cells, particularly to alkaline electrochemical cells. In one aspect, the invention relates to separator-containing alkaline electrochemical cells. In the manufacture of electrochemical cells, a separator is interposed between the anode and cathode. The separator, which may comprise paper, a polymer or polymer coated paper, fabric or a ceramic or metal mat, is selected for its insulative properties and good ionic conductivity.
