Have you ever wanted to look a little different? There are a few cosmetic options to customize your Windows Phone a little bit. If you change the theme, you may have a different visual experience. You can also use the lock screen to make a little more personal presentation. Maybe you're tired of the white backdrop or want a lock screen in your style. Customizing the lock screen is done through the Lock Screen manager. It is located in the Start screen, and it is easy to navigate. Like a file manager, you can browse for a folder. You will need to navigate to the theme folder to find all the custom themes for your Windows Phone. Simply click on them, and it will launch the theme on your phone in a WinPE style. With the themes, you can create a new lock screen. To do this, you will need to choose a picture or photo you would like for your lock screen. If you are a photo fan, you can add several images for different screens you might use. The newest templates on the market will have a black background with a white photo. With this theme, you can keep the black backdrop, but change the photo to be your favorite image. If you would like to create your own color, the color picker is ready for you. You can also add a geotag to the lock screen. This will allow a map to be displayed in the background. Many people want to know what they will find in the Start screen. If you look under Explore, you will find the recent items and applications you have used most often. You can also click in the tiles to view the application or see where the tile is defined. You can move the tiles around, change the sizes, and check the tile when you would like to. The app shortcut is another great tool to have on your Windows Phone. It is great for frequently used applications. You can either specify the app and the location, or you can select from a list. You can browse for a folder on your phone in order to customize your tiles. You can even search through a list of widgets. Create a shortcut is really easy, and the settings are similar to the apps themselves. You can also add a page from the Start screen to display in the background.
