I try to compile this code: // test.cpp #include <include int main() { time_t a = 1234; return 0; } I get the error: C1083: Cannot open include file:stdio.h: No such file or directory There is no any error in the output window of visual studio and output is compiled successfully: cl /c /Z7 /MT /Gm test.cpp But when I try to run the program I get the error: a.exe has stopped working. I don't know what is causing this problem. I have tried changing "stdio.h" to "cstdio" and also adding cstdio.h in the 'Include Directories' settings, but I still get the same error. I have tried to find the reason for that problem, but I have failed. A: When you use the /MT compiler flag, you should include both stdio.h and stdlib.h. It looks
