Both the artificial intelligence and player movements are then analyzed and combined with teams' and players' physical traits to create thousands of unique "player classes" - comparable to those seen in an NBA game. The "player classes" or "player archetypes" will vary from one position to the next, with some classes being strong at transitioning into space, dribbling, playing in tight areas or ball recovery. The game's 300 player classes are named in homage to the film trilogy of 2000 AD comics, and will include classic archetypes such as "Cruiser," "Jumper" and "Striker," but there are also many new archetypes such as the "Creator," a creative role that can score a goal or set up an assist. Archetypes of the FIFA 22 player classes. The "Ribbon" Cover includes new creator archetypes. We are excited to share that "HyperMotion Technology" will be available as a new option for users who have successfully registered their license after downloading the Patch 1.03. Head of FIFA development Niclas Ericson said: "We've been working hard to bring some big changes to the next FIFA game. With the previously announced new cover formats and our move to a new engine, FIFA 22 will be one of the most enjoyable and innovative FIFA games that we have ever created. We can't wait to unleash the power of the new football engine and the new technologies being developed in-game, which make FIFA 22 so different from other sports games." Players who have already registered their license before Patch 1.03 will automatically have "HyperMotion Technology" enabled for them and their gameplay will be improved in certain game modes. Additional information about "HyperMotion Technology" will be shared closer to release. We want to thank the thousands of fans who have followed our development on the FIFA 17 engine. We have always worked to improve the game with each iteration and would like to thank you for supporting us throughout that journey.
