A nice game for the kids. Circus Atos was created by the Circus Atos company in October 2006. The game has been well received since its release and published by Atom-Amusements that is distributed in Europe, Middle East and Asia. Circus Atos is an educational game created to teach young children the alphabet and numbers, as well as many useful words. At the end of the game, the children have to answer five questions. Each question requires a different set of words, allowing a progression of vocabulary. The children can play with their favourite characters: Little Mouse, Little Horse and the blind man. It can also be played as a detective by allowing the children to play the part of one of the characters. They are not just looking for the missing mouse or the lost horse, they are looking for a missing horse or a missing mouse! Contents Rules of the Game 1 - Introduction 2 - Start Instructions for playing on your computer, mobile phone or tablet, or a device with the game on a disc or cartridge, are available in the game box. Start the game and, if necessary, read the instructions for the version you are playing on. 3 - Help the little mice After the instructions, allow the children to answer five questions. By reading and saying the right words, it is possible to find and play with the remaining three mouse characters. In the end, when the children see that the little mice are waiting for them, they will find their egg and fly off, and the conclusion of the game will be found on the upper left corner of the screen. 4 - Answers to the questions Find the answer to each of the five questions, then click on the correct category in order to find the answer. In the first question, the children should look at the four starting positions on the screen, and click on the correct word that is on the table. In the second question, look at the four starting positions on the screen and then click on the left or right sides of the appropriate category. The third question requires the children to give the correct word from the two options in the "l" and "s" starting positions, while the fourth question requires them to click on the correct word from the two options in the "r" and "f" starting positions. In the last question, choose the correct category

Fling To The Finish - Bomb Character Features Key:

Choose a player number, each of whom is assigned his own DMs assistant.

Each player is issued a DM screen that displays the game stats, including the number of inventoried monsters that the players have.

Monsters are inventoried to show the number of attacks they have left. Also, monsters are invoiced to show what they cost.

A player can play equipment cards to replenish his hit points and repair his weapons.

Playing cards with a bright green background are used to soften monsters to make them easier to damage. Playing cards with a light red background are used to armor monsters. A green card that is adjacent to a monster with no green inventory cost is used to soften that monster. A card with the name "Muffle" on it takes the monster out of play, because the monster's sudden death ability is used against the player.

Players are given a set of pencils and pens at the beginning of the session. The pens are used to write notes to one another.

Set up

- On the DM Table, place the 2 inventoried monsters: Small Rock dragon and Small Rock devil in the core of the two unlocked squares, 6 inches away from the player's initiative point, and 18 inches away from their corresponding soften monsters.
- Two cards are placed at the edges of the table. The green "soften" monster is adjacent to the first square, and the red "armor" monster is at the other end of the table.

Play

- The Inventories button needs to be clicked to update the screens.
- When the monster is softened, the monster loses half of it's moves and the damage bonus goes from +2 to + jstaab@hotmail.com PCA 8823133 ROWLEY — Stu Hayes is fast approaching a major milestone birthday: 60. “I have a 50 this year, coming up,” he said. “Wow.” He may lack any actual years left on him, but Hayes lives the life of a million. The senior executive at Wabash National Corp. operates amid a veritable cornucopia of bling. On Thursday morning, Hayes toured the renovated and expanded Wabash Office. Everything was shiny and new, including a new conference room, and he thanked Pinelake Country Club head pro George Callen for donating several antique flags — and a brass chandelier, still in pieces — to the company for the new space. “I love our office,” Hayes said. “It’s beautiful, the entire building.” Hayes describes Wabash National as his “baby,” as baby as you can get, a company he started with his dad, Joseph E. Hayes, in 1949. At one time, the company was the fifth-largest commercial bank in Indiana. It was, according to Hayes, “the most successful bank in Marion County,” with a total of $7.6 billion in assets in 1976. Today, the company has 11 percent of that total, just under $750 million in assets, which is to say, around 1/20th of a penny per share. Wabash’s earnings per share are along the bottom of that list, and at best around 0.15 in the current fiscal year, Hayes said. But you don’t get rich — or even rich — by being No. 5, he said. Back when he was close to a decade old, Hayes’ dad gave him a laundry list of requirements before this company would let anyone step foot inside the doors. “The general deal was that you had to walk through two liens before you came in,” Hayes said. “There was always lie insurance in the basement of the building, so if you pulled in there, two liens started. If you just walked up and crossed the threshold, your mom was supposed to be there, reminding you, telling you, 'You've got to wear a tie. You've got
