Wedgie Simulator

Shadow Wolf Mysteries: Cursed Wedding is a fantastic Hidden Object game, although it is more of a comedy, and less of a detective story than its predecessors. This point & click is set in the beautiful city of Paris, full of cathedrals, cafes, and museums, and is based on the popular bestseller book series of the same name. Players are tasked with finding their way through a particular scene, consisting of multiple chapters, in order to locate the objects necessary to defeat a vengeful werewolf and put an end to his curse. The scenes themselves are fairly detailed, although the objects/character names are lacking in variety. The game is generally challenging, but easy to finish if players are willing to place an emphasis on the scene instead of the traditional HOCS puzzles.

Features:- Immerse yourself in a gorgeous city full of mystery and drama with a compelling storyline- Follow a brilliant detective and his unlikely assistant as they unravel the truth behind a deadly werewolf curse- Easily explore the city of Paris with its cathedrals, restaurants, museums, and much more- Enjoy beautiful puzzles as you search for evidence and obtain objects, outsmart the werewolf Mephistus, and put an end to his curse

Thursday Jul 3, 2013 at 10:56 PM By Mark Edward Harris Paris Blade Mark Edward Harris I have an affinity for the dead. I know it isn't everyone's thing to embrace the untimely demise of a loved one. I've been there. My maternal great aunt Eunice Denton died, at age 70, in January of 1990. She lived with my family in nearby Jamestown, and passed away of lung cancer in Clackamas County Hospital. Because there had always been concern about my great aunt's health, Eunice had been living and working out of Jamestown for most of her adult life. She'd taken some time off on and off, but was having some pain in her side and would go back to work. This had been going on for just under a year. I loved her, and would call her at least once a week with questions for my mom to answer; mostly about things concerning Eunice's health. I remember what my mom said at the time. "She hasn't been a good mood lately," the never-wrong mom replied to my calls, "but she's getting along." Friday night, January 14th, 1990, Eunice was getting a drink with her close friend in a local Denny's on Northwest Tanasbourne Boulevard. Some fool cut them off in traffic, and their car ran off the road. Eunice and her friend were thrown up against the steering wheel and hit their head violently. The bump on my great aunt's head would create a forever scar that you'd never see in an onlooker's eyes. It didn't leave that lasting effect, so you could glance down at Eunice, and not get startled at the size of the hole in her head. Eunice's death was a sad end to the short-lived first decade of my life. Her voice was the sounding of the trumpets at Christ's resurrection. Her joy was the release of God's earnest promise to Hebreans. She was happy to be on His team. What I've always liked about funerals — and the end of life — is you have control over the nature of how they go. Eunice and I went to

In The Arena of Arun, and its surrounding lands, you control one of a number of warring factions, battling to establish a kingdom in a landscape torn by civil war. The battle takes place on a single large landscape with a very large number of inhabitants. Whether in combat, you must keep track of the demands of your army and buildings at all times. At each level, you are given the opportunity to train your troops, build new buildings and upgrade your existing ones. The history of the kingdom is visible through a map of the world. One thing is clear though: YOU ARE THE GUARDIAN OF THE WORLD! Credits Features: Deep Water's RPG is a single player RPG/PBG turn-based strategy game with online multiplayer. Thorough battle tutorials allow you to play the game on your own, without having to watch a tutorial (you can always pause the game and ask any questions you may have). Dynamic campaign, make your own paths, plan ahead and replay battles you did not quite win. Random BGs, generated levels to create a custom BG. English, Simplified Chinese and Korean. Features: Turn-based PvP RPG, full offline and online multiplayer, over 14 different maps and over 15 different heroes, specially developed to perform different roles, a card-based inventory, a heartbeat system for your PC, easy to play and of course, all the features that you have in deep water, with an extra turn. Gameplay: The player takes on the role of a unique Warrior, Mage or Archer in a warring faction and travels the world by a fleet of airships (narrow, rotating platforms). Each faction has an army of fighters (3 fighters for archer, 10-15 fighters for mage and 30 for warrior) and a fleet of airships which move to different areas of the world. They are hard to be found, and the attacks are also hard to defeat! Each faction has a time per turn limit. If the time runs out, the faction is too weak to fight any more. If you win, it is because you had a much stronger force than the other faction. If you lose, you have to wait your turn again or to ask for help from other players. Fight for survival, win the game! Your task is to control the faction, and the most important aspect of the game is that you have to
