It's really not much different from the other image editing programs, but it's so much easier to use.

The proposed research will apply a novel methodological approach to gingival recession (GR) treatment planning and treatment assessment. This will be achieved through the use of established and emerging theoretical models of GR treatment planning and assessment, the application of those models in a computerized clinical environment, and the use of new and emerging digital imaging and point cloud techniques. The overall goal of this research is to develop a user friendly, accessible, and cost effective clinical software tool to aid in the treatment planning and assessment of GR cases. Under the mentorship of Dr. Trevor Garry, an expert in computerized GR treatment planning, this research will also provide the necessary training and preparation for a successful career as an independent researcher. The results will be applied to form a research-based clinical treatment guideline for gingival recession (GR) cases and ultimately lead to the development of an automated clinical decision support system. Relevance: Periodontal diseases represent a significant problem to society. The results of this research will aid in the diagnosis and treatment planning for GR cases. The results will also lead to an automated clinical decision support system that will aid in the diagnosis and treatment planning for periodontal diseases.Q: Trying to make a 2nd column when a button is pressed Hi I have been trying to make a 2nd column when a button is pressed. So far, if you refresh it will work. But for some reason once you close the page and reopen the code won't work. I'm guessing that the query is not working since it is asking for the input everytime. For the code to work once you refresh it, you need to leave the page open, and when a link is clicked it is supposed to display something from that. Any help on how to do that is appreciated! (function() { var url = ''; if(!location.referrer) { location.referrer = ""; } if(url == location.referrer) { url = ""; } var lastId = $('a.online-item-link').attr('href').split('item?id=')[1]; var post_id = lastId.split('&').join('?id=');
