You can watch Khamoshiyan (2015) in your PC.The pollsters continue to hammer away at the implications of the new Australian Bureau of Statistics tax data. After being initially somewhat pessimistic, things have started to turn around and the current is now presenting the government and the business community with a constructive outlook on fiscal policy and tax reform. Overall, the opinion polls have proved remarkably resilient over the last two years or so and the public have demonstrated a remarkable capacity to modify their positions in the face of changing circumstances. Moreover, the data collected since the April budget has been supportive of the government's position on key issues. Many commentators have correctly pointed out that the opinions expressed in recent opinion polls have been more measured than they were in 2011. The business community is responding positively to the budget, which has put downward pressure
